

While I wouldn't make use of a broker when buying a new car, I see no reason to bar other people from making use of such a service. There are many reasons to allow brokers, but I can't imagine a valid reason to not allow them. The only person it can negatively impact isn't a person at all. It's the dealerships that no doubt lobbied heavily to have the rule/law enacted in the first place.

Ricky Poole
Texarkana, TX